Incumbent Wild Wins In Ballot Walk-Away

By JERRY FLOOD

There were few surprises following last week's Student Senate president and vice-presidential election.

S. Kent Wild teamed with Jim Zadina and nearly doubled the number of votes received by the Wild-Nolan ticket of last year.

Wild and Zadina received 893 votes with the next closest ticket gathering only 219. The second place finish by Jericho Honore and Danny Powers was not without implications.

From the outset, Honore intended to point out some of the problems he felt were part of the student election and student government system. His objective was to get votes for his ticket and show that there was discontent with current policies.

During the campaigning there was talk of a bootstrap backlash, this however, apparently did not materialize. If anything, the opposite appeared to happen, that is, a boycott by most of these individuals.

Mike Richardson and Doug Schumann, with 92 votes, never posed a serious threat to any of the other candidates. Their entry into the race seemed more intent on furthering their personal campus politics rather than being geared to win.

In fact this ticket barely beat out the write-in space on the ballot, which received 87 votes.

For the second year in a row, the student body will have a non-Greek for its president. The only noticeable change from last year's high office independent ticket is the addition of sophomore Zadina. This addition was an apparent move to get needed votes from the Greek students at the expense of dropping bootstrap K. Jim Anderson from the ticket.

The total vote last spring was 1,156. This year's total of 1,291 represents a meager 135 vote increase.

If the campaign lacked enthusiasm, it made up for it with political maneuvering and rhetoric.

In a political advertisement in the Gateway, the new president and vice-president made personalities of their opponents a prime target.

This was inherent in the campaign theme of, "Proven Leadership" and "responsible" student government. In the advertisement it was stated, "We're in favor of Christ on Christmas and leaving your bricks at home." These are hardly campaign issues on this campus.

If responsibility was the true intent of the campaign, such language would not have been necessary.

On the other side, Honore and Powers worked to point out the passage of a new student constitution would not benefit anyone but the Wild-Zadina administration.

Their intent was not necessarily to serve the students but to aid their campaign.

It was also stated in the Wild advertisement that "the most responsible way to obtain student rights is through student government. Sit-ins may be effective at times but only results in resentment by the administration, faculty and community..."

This position seems to be one of the most well-known political sell-outs since Wild's former vice-president Mike Nolan pushed the Student Senate to back most of the actions taken during the so-called sit-in.

Although there was no tremendous amount of enthusiasm

Unitary Form 'Ultimate' Aim

A recommendation for the ultimate establishment of a unitary form of government at the University and proposals for the creation of two interim governmental bodies under the present system will be forwarded the University Senate today by the Sub-Committee on Governance.

The recommendation of the six-member group, three faculty and three students, states that ultimately a unitary form of government should be established at the University composed of faculty, staff and students.

Separate Now

The unitary form contrasts with the present University Senate, Student Senate, Administrative committee set-up in which the three groups are separate entities.

The committee's report, to be given by the group's chairman, Lawrence Ehlers, asks the Student and University Senate presidents to form a committee to study "the most equitable unitary form of government for UNO" and to report on its findings to both governmental bodies by November 1970.

At the University Senate meeting opening at 2:30 in Adm. 277 this afternoon, Chairman Ehlers is also forwarding a subcommittee suggestion that information relative to unitary systems at other schools start being collected immediately by the proposed committee and that hearings be held this spring and next fall to elicit student, faculty, and staff opinions on the unitary idea.

In another item, the subcommittee recommends the Senate presidents set up another committee to report no later than November 1970 to the Senates on the make-up powers, and jurisdiction of a University Court.

Between now and November, the following recommendations will be made "for the purpose of improving communications between Senates":

1) The establishment of a University Council composed of the Senate Presidents and the University Ombudsman (the Dean of Student Personnel to serve on the group until the Ombudsman is selected).

The Council would serve "as a transmitter of resolutions in both directions (from Senates to President or President to Senates-".

The proposed group would also "check on the implementation and continuing adherence by appropriate University officials of resolutions approved by the President of University."

Further, the Council would determine which resolutions required both Senates to act upon them and would direct resolutions to the appropriate University officials.

2) The establishment of a joint Arbitration Committee to work out differences on those resolutions passing through both Senates. Committee membership and size would be determined by the University Council.

Through Student Senate

3) All committees having student representation should have their resolutions directed through both the University and Student Senates. At present, many resolutions coming from committees with student representation only go through the former.

4) The University Senate should change its name to Faculty Senate.

5) The Student Activities Committee under the University Senate should be abolished since many of its powers are largely those of the present Student Senate.

In addition to Ehlers, others serving on the committee were faculty members Thomas Majeski and Dr. Darrell Kellams, and students Jim Zadina, Steve Wild, and Randy Owens.

Vote Dates Uncertain

Uncertainty is the key word this week when discussion centers on upcoming Student Senate elections.

Senate petition forms, now available in MBSC 301, indicate the petition submittal deadline is today; Senate president Steve Wild, however, says petitions may be turned in as late as Friday and adds the deadline may even be extended further after the Senate meeting Thursday night.

According to the petitions, the elections are to be held April 15-16; however, Senate action Thursday night may transfer the dates to later in the month, says Wild.

25 Spots Up

At stake in the elections are 25 seats on next year's 30-member Senate. The college and class apportionment will be aligned according to the newly-student-approved Senate constitution.

For the first time in University student government history, graduate students will be given explicit representation. Five graduate slots are available.

Also on the line will be positions for sophomore through senior class offices and seats representing the Colleges of Arts and Sciences, Engineering & Technology, Business Administration and Education.

College of Continuing Studies will elect four representatives to sit on the Senate until next Fall when a new election will be held.

College apportionment figures: Engineering & Technology, 2; Education, 3; Graduate, 5; CCS, 4; Arts & Sciences, 3; University Division, 3; and Business Adm., 2.

Frosh, Too

Along with the re-election of the CCS representatives in the fall, the freshmen class representatives and the University Division representatives will be elected.

Besides class or college requirements, all prospective candidates must be in good standing with the University, both academically and disciplinary-wise.

Among campaign rules newly-adopted, candidates and their supporters cannot take out advertisements in the Gateway during the course of the campaign; however, Mike Nolan, Senate vice-president, has indicated he will attempt to have the rule changed tomorrow night to allow candidates maximum ads of six-column inches up to the election dates.

Retreat Registration Set

Registration forms for the April 17-18 Student-Faculty Leadership Retreat, "A Weekend Experience in Leadership," are now available outside MBSC 301.

The forms are due by April 15.

As a result of a University Human Relations Committee recommendation, the accent for the retreat co-sponsored by Omicron Delta Kappa and WAOKIYA, will be on human relations on campus and the role of the University in the community.

A film and slide presentation, "The Way It Is," guest speakers from the community, and a Friday night featured speaker will highlight the two-day affair at Camp Esther Newman located outside Louisville, Neb.

Students will leave for the retreat location at 3:30 p.m. on the 17th and return by 5 p.m. the next day by chartered bus.

Complete instructions are available with the registration forms. Co-chairmen of the event are Cathy Burgess and Randy Owens.

Court, SAC Spots Are Open

Students interested in serving either on the newly-created Student Court or the University Senate's Student Activities Committee should contact the Student Senate Office, MBSC 301, this week.

Senate president Steve Wild is to announce the appointments at a Senate meeting the final week this month.

Five justices will be chosen for the court, one graduate and four undergraduates.

Marginal Mandate

The winning slate really surprised no one. The winning margin may have.

The 893 votes garnered by the Steve Wild-Jim Zadina ticket represented almost 70 per cent of the total vote March 25-26 as the student body participated in the University's third election of a president and vice-president of the Student Senate.

Most veteran observers of campus student politics predicted the finish. Whether it was Wild's meritable record in office, the past year or a resentment for the confrontation tactics of Honore, Powers, Richardson, and Schumann, students who voted, again very few although the highest in recent years, felt overwhelmingly Wild-Zadina was the best bet.

The Gateway lauds Wild for his contribution to student government at the University the past year with primary emphasis on his effort to maintain a sound student role in campus government.

Especially noteworthy have been his establishment of a housing office (although we may question the large salaries involved), his successful transfer of Student Activities Budget powers to the Student Senate, his what-appears-to-be successful instigation of placement of a stoplight at the northwest entrance-exit to the University, his resolution of the long, drawn-out organization question, and his development of a larger, more efficient Senate headquarters.

As for Zadina, his record the past year as Senate treasurer has been efficient if not headline-stealing. The Gateway does hope Zadina begins to assert himself more at meetings to gain the leadership and respect of the Senate membership.

Yes, the margin of victory was rather wide. The Gateway feels Wild-Zadina have been given a mandate to continue the development of student government at the University in a manner approaching the record of the past year.

One More Step Closer

More and more each day, so it seems, UNO moves a step closer toward the role of an urban University.

Just about a month after NU Chancellor Durwood Varner's recommendation to the Board of Regents to establish a commission to study ways in which UNO can more greatly participate in community development, the annual student-faculty retreat will be centering on the very same topic.

"A Weekend Experience in Leadership" is the title of the April 17-18 affair at Camp Esther Newman; but, instead of on-campus leadership, which will of course draw its share of the discussion time, off-campus leadership of the University will be the number one item on the agenda.

This is the first real indication of student interest in the community; the Gateway hopes the student body will prove itself a leader in the University community by registering in large numbers for the annual event.

Wild-Zadina Ticket Tops Senate Leadership Vote

generated during this election by any interest group on campus, it is apparent that the Greeks are content to work through the existing power structure.

With the Senate presidency held by an independent the fraternal organizations remain content to control the Student Senate.

The test of this control, if it is an issue at all, will become known when Senate positions come up for re-election.

To echo the word of Wild's former campaign manager Craig Reisser, "It is hoped that this election will be the beginning of a new era in campus politics," one in which issues are of foremost importance."

Letters to the Editor

Sir:

Article III, Section 8, of the Associated Students By-laws states specifically, "the Australian ballot shall be the type used in all elections."

Webster's New World Dictionary of the American Language, College Edition, defines the Australian ballot as "a type of ballot listing candidates for election to public office, marked by the voter in privacy so that his vote will be secret."

To the best of my knowledge, in the election held March 25 and 26, no attempt was made by the Student Senate to fulfill their responsibility in this area, nor was an Australian ballot in fact used in the election.

I feel this flagrant abuse of the election

Vote Invalidation Writer's Intention

process is a just and reasonable cause for the election to be invalidated.

Not wishing to distract attention from my basic objection, but intending only to give an accurate presentation of the facts, I must also point out that portions of Sections 9, 12, 14 and 15 governing elections were also violated.

In view of these irregularities, I must demand that a new election for President and Vice-President of the Student Senate be held. I must also demand that adequate precautions be taken to assure the student body of an honest election.

Daniel K. Powers

(Ed. Note: The above letter was forwarded to Dean of Student Personnel Donald Pfisterer, Student Senate sponsor, and to the Gateway. Section 9 deals with the necessity for having two poll judges at the polls at all times; Section 12 states the judges and the Senate president shall tabulate the ballots, and, by means of numbers on the ballots, account for them all; Section 14 states ballots must be folded; Section 15 states judges' signatures (2) on the ballot must be on its outer fold.)

'Honore's Comment Fallacious'

Sir:

If the articles appearing in the March 13 issue of the Gateway are to be believed, we are facing a military-educational complex.

However, this is not the case, as I should like to prove by demonstrating the fallacy of Honore's arguments.

"Until you have fallen prey in the bottom half of a curve set by this vicious clan..." Other than casual acquaintanceships in class or revival of friendships made on previous tours, Bootstrappers are generally loners, and the existence of a clan, vicious or not, is pure nonsense.

As to the charge of "mission-oriented degree seeker," the function of a university is to educate and enlighten, and that is the reason we came to learn.

"Since he draws full pay from the military, he need not work, thus leaving hours and days for cramming." This is a specious argument.

How many students at UNO are having their parents pay the entire tab for their college education, along with spending money? Quite a few. These individuals also have no financial worries.

They also have no worries about where their next assignment will be, when the next promotion list will be published, or any of the professional concerns of the Bootstrapper. They also do not incur a two-year obligation when they leave the school.

"The 'real cost' is usually paid by regular students who are plagued with considerable other requirements than going home to the wife and kids." What other requirements, Honore? Whom to take to the Junior Prom? What fraternity to pledge? Whether or not they will win their varsity letter in football?

While it is obvious some of the students are putting themselves through college, it is equally obvious that others are not.

In contrast, the wives and children are a responsibility not to be taken lightly. Our families need time and attention, often more than that class in business or economics.

"Marathon group study augmented by Pen and Sword secret files..." Really, Honore. Do you contend the fraternities on campus do not keep files on the courses and professors? Or that fraternity men do not use group study for exams?

In equity, if you plan to segregate the Bootstrappers, you should also segregate the fraternities, for they employ the same tactics.

"The conspiratorial nature of Bootstrappers creates a mutual interdependence devoid of normal competition because the rest of the class is there to serve as pappies." The word "conspiracy" makes fine copy and sells newspapers, as evidenced by the Garrison conspiracy probe but the use of this word as a description of Bootstrappers is ridiculous. There is no conspiracy, Honore.

What exists is a common bond of friendship among men of similar interests and experience, men who have a common meeting ground—the military service.

Who have the utmost respect for the other students at UNO.

As to the lack of competition, what of the Bootstrapper who takes Governmental Accounting to learn something useful when he returns to his chosen profession, only to be faced by a number of accounting majors from the College of Business Administration?

Who is bending the curve here?

Finally, the UNO students have a major advantage over Bootstrappers, in that they are full-time students and have been for from twelve to sixteen years, while the Bootstrapper has been away from an academic environment for some years, and is not acclimated to the learning process as well as other students.

The average student carries 15 hours, the average Bootstrapper 18 hours a semester.

Both have an equal opportunity to study or cram. How he spends his time is his personal decision, based on personal standards of which is worth more to him, an A in the course, or a B in the course, accompanied by other outside activities.

As to the charge of curve bending, check the statistics on the percentage of Bootstrappers graduating with a 3.5 average, compared with the percentage of the graduating classes in other colleges within the university with the same average.

You might be surprised.

Robert M. Howard

'Boots Are Sick'

Sir:

Honore is right about putting bootstrappers into separate classes; better yet, they should be bussed to a different school.

One bootstrapper, when I asked him about Vietnam, said he had been shot up a few times and killed a few people, but it was fun. FUN?

These bootstrappers are sick, hiding their sickness behind the American flag. They should be put into separate classes so their sickness does not invade the other students.

Mark Gregory

'Jive' Reverberations Continue

Sir:

A group of independents feel Honore's accusations and the boots rebuttals are missing or overlooking an important issue.

What about the fraternities and sororities on campus?

Don't they know about the loyalty required of each to divulge questions and answers of tests to brothers and sisters?

How about the student-teacher group cram sessions before tests? It must be nice to have a personal updated test file to use for your own personal gains.

If the two groups, Black and boot, must rap on each other, why not involve the organized crime on campus, Greeks?

Brown Baggin' It

By RICHARD D. BROWN

Eighteen years and 22 million copies of Baby and Child Care have established Dr. Benjamin Spock as one of the greatest non-fiction authors of all time.

Since 1952, his famous child care manual has dominated the bestseller lists and has been printed in 26 languages. One multi-million seller and several follow-up periodical articles have established Spock as one of the greatest names in pediatrics of the decade.

In recent years, however, Spock has gained national prominence in another area—the anti-Viet Nam, anti-draft movement. During the early days of 1968, Spock along with four of his associates were charged with conspiring to counsel young men to avoid the draft.

In court the famed doctor was found guilty as charged but in mid-July last summer, the pediatrics specialist found his court conviction reversed. New trials were also ordered by the First Circuit Court of Appeals for two of Spock's friends who were convicted with him.

The UNO Student Programming Organization (SPO) has booked Spock, who is currently on a nationwide speaking tour for an Omaha appearance Friday evening at 8 at the Omaha Civic Auditorium Music Hall.

Dr. Spock

Speaking to UNO students and interested members of the community on "Dissent and Social Change" will be nothing new for Spock who since 1962 has spoken out against national policies which endanger the lives of millions of young people he has helped raise.

His travels over the past year have netted him speaking engagements on over 50 college campuses as a representative of the Civil Liberties Legal Defense Fund, Inc. The organization provides funds for the legal fees of young men involved in draft and military disputes with the federal government.

Spock comes to Omaha for his UNO-sponsored appearance, sure to be standing room only, not only as a baby doctor and Viet Nam war-selective service critic, but as a humanitarian-thinking American who wants the best for the millions of kids he helped raise.

Following Spock's lecture at the Music Hall at 8 Friday evening will be the annual SPO "Midnight Slapstick" program at the Orpheum Theater, 409 South Sixteenth Street.

Silent movies of the old time variety starring Colleen Moore, a Keystone Kop comedy and a cartoon feature will be shown to the live organ background music provided by keyboard master Gaylord Carter.

Much of the "Slapstick's" possibilities center around the music of Carter who is known for doing meritorious arrangements of the tunes of Cole Porter and George Gershwin but the music of the Now Generation will not be ignored.

Carter, who has made previous appearances at silent movie showings in Omaha, was featured on many radio and television shows years ago, most notably on the "Amos 'n Andy Show."

The master organist is not behind times in his music, however, as he plays a wide selection of today's hits from the Broadway musical "Hair," Lennon-McCartney arrangements and the songs which have made the Burt Bacharach-Hal David team famous including "Always Something There to Remind Me," "I Say a Little Prayer" and "Raindrops Keep Fallin' on My Head."

The "Slapstick" features which will begin at midnight are open free to full-time students with ID's and part-time students for 75 cents. Non-students can view the films and dig Carter's organ arrangements for $1.50.

ODDS & ENDS

Auditions will be held April 13 and 14, 1:30-5 p.m. in the Adm. Auditorium for casting of three student-directed one-act plays to be staged by the University Theatre May 15.

Both male and female parts are available involving many aspects of acting. Interested students should contact University Theatre Director Dr. Edwin Clark for further information.

The Spiral Starecase will be the featured entertainment at next Wednesday evening's duel SPO concerts in the Student Center Ballroom.

Two performances, 7:30 and 9:30 will be given free to ID-carrying students.

Greg Classen, Rikki Smith and none of their fellow SPO Council colleagues know anything about the group they hired at student expense.

While the Starecase will most likely earn at least two grand for their UNO visit, certainly SPO should investigate to find what kind of entertainment they hired or did they merely select their featured rock group from a mail order catalogue of groups currently available for college tours?

At press time SPO does not know of the group they hired. Could it be a group like the sweet-singing Lennon Sisters or a group resembling the auto-erotic Doors?

IFC Pushes Perot Effort

A drive will begin today in the Student Center for signatures in an effort related to the Ross Perot's campaign to release American prisoners of war in North Vietnam.

The UNO drive for signatures will be the kick-off for a citywide sign up sponsored by the Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Perot, the billionaire who last Christmas attempted to fly turkey dinners, medicine and family parcels to American POW's in Hanoi, is currently back in Southeast Asia trying to see "the highest officials" of the North Vietnamese.

The drive here on campus will be manned by members of the Interfraternity Council and will last the rest of the week. On Saturday, the drive will be continued by the Jay-Cee's at all the shopping centers in the city.

According to an organizer on the city level, Donald Moberg, the sign-up is aimed at people regardless if they are for or against the Vietnam War.

1500 POWs

A fact sheet handed out by the drive's sponsors shows North Vietnam in violation of the Geneva Convention of 1957. It states, by the treaty's accords, that North Vietnam must release the names of prisoners held, immediate release of prisoners who are sick or wounded, impartial inspections of facilities used for prisoner detention and assurance that all prisoners receive proper medical care and adequate food.

Today, there are about 1500 American military men who are classified by the U.S. Government as Prisoners or as Missing in Action in Vietnam and Laos.

Ron Greek, an organizer on campus for IFC, states that they expect about 3000 to 4000 signatures.

New YD's Set Meeting

The new UNO Young Democratic Club will meet tonight at 6 in the Tower Room on the third floor of MBSC.

A membership table is set up on the first floor of MBSC today and Thursday and tickets to the Annual Urban League Dinner with guest speaker, Rev. Jesse L. Jackson, will be sold through noon on Thursday. The dinner will be Sunday, April 12, at 6 p.m. in the Peony Park Ballroom. Tickets are $5.00.

The Young Democrats tonight will vote on a new constitution and members will have a chance to sign up as delegates to the YD State Convention to be held in Grand Island the weekend of April 17-19.

Any new member is entitled to be a delegate.

Those interested in working for Bob Reilly for Congress are also encouraged to attend a rally of the "Reilly 400" this Sunday at 3 p.m. in the Prom-Town House Ballroom at 7000 Dodge.

Those interested in working for Wally Peterson for U.S. Senate should contact Kay Brown at 556-3872.

Ticket Sale For Formal This Week

Tickets are on sale April 6-April 10 in the University Student Center, opposite the OUampi Room, for the annual Military Spring Formal of the Society of the Pen and Sword/Unit Fund.

The Formal will be held April 25th in the Peony Park Ballroom, 7600 Cass St. beginning at 6 p.m. with a cocktail hour and dinner at 7 p.m., followed by special guest speakers.

The Diplomats will provide a floor show and the dance music.

The formal will be open to all members of the Society of the Pen and Sword and active military full time students and their guests.

Tickets will also be available at the Pen and Sword Society Office in the Prom Town House, 7000 Dodge St. between 1 p.m. and 5 p.m., during this week and the week following.

Aid Given

The Council on Student Affairs of the University Senate has initiated a series of meetings designed to open lines of communication with students.

Members of the Council will meet with any student or students who wish to present a problem that Council might be able to help with.

A future meeting will be April 9, at 2:30 p.m. in MBSC 302.

Council members in attendance will be Fred Ray, director of the Student Center, and Dr. Ralph Wardle, professor of English.

Indians are Ambushed on Southern Roadtrip

UNO's baseball team will have a chance to near the 500 mark this afternoon against Dana College. The 1 p.m. game will be played at Brown Park, 5708 S. 15th St.

The Indians, still recovering from their disappointing 12-day southern roadtrip, are aiming for their twelfth winning season under rookie coach Carl Meyers.

Trinity 6, UNO 3

The Indians were never able to come back after a five-run first inning bombardment. Held to only three hits, UNO's three runs were all unearned.

UNO split an April Fools Day doubleheader, losing to Southwestern, 9-7, and coming back to defeat South West Texas, 12-10. Seventeen hits by the Georgetown squad doomed the Indians' in the opener.

Centerfielder Dick Davis went 3-for-5 and Dave Kislausk added to hits in the losing cause. Starting pitcher Steve Sergeant was tabbed for the loss.

New Aide's Aim: Best

New assistant football coach Bill Danenhauer has set one simple yet demanding goal for himself at UNO. "Do the best job I can."

Certainly no one can really ask for more than that, but his task might be harder because of last season's dismal 3-6 record. Most defensive starters are gone and he must attempt to build a defensive line around leading tackler Mel Washington.

And though he hasn't had time to really get acquainted and work with any possible success, Danenhauer does have some things he plans to do. "I really can't say what I will try to do yet. I'll have to have some time to view the films. But I know I will try to work with the individuals themselves during spring practice. I want to get to know the men better and maybe by working with them I can add something character wise to each individual." But his main goal: "just winning football."

Danenhauer hails from Commerce City, Colo., and coached at Adams City, H. S. nine successful years, compiling a 47-37-6 won loss slate. Last year he was named as the Colorado High School All-Star game coach.

Will the transition from high school to college coaching hamper him? Danenhauer answers, "at first it might, I'll admit that. But the only real difference I can really see is that at this stage of the game when the player tries out for the college team he has advanced so much and knows more about football, whereas in high school, the candidate more or less just walks in the door. In high school you try to teach them as much as you can about football and the game. At most universities a majority of the players have reached a certain platform in life where you do not try to teach them as much football as you do trying to make them better men."

A monster of a man, Danenhauer has seen the wars of professional wars from uniform. He toiled for the Baltimore Colts as a defensive end in 1956 and 1957, and with the Denver

Broncos and Boston Patriots in 1960.

The 35-year-old newcomer began his duties on March 23, just enough time to get half-way settled before spring practice starts.

Though again, here for just a short time Danenhauer has noticed "the warm and friendly hospitality of the students and my colleagues."

The rest of his family has not moved to Omaha yet but will journey to Omaha when school ends. His wife is also a teacher in Commerce City, thus creating that problem, along with the children.

While visiting with the new coach, one cannot help but notice the quiet assurance of Danenhauer to make good. It can be believed by all UNO students that this time they are in the presence of a winner.

World Campus Afloat is a college that does more than broaden horizons. It sails to them and beyond.

Again in the 1970-71 academic year, the accredited World Campus Afloat program of Chapman College and its associated Colleges and Universities will take qualified students, faculty and staff into the world laboratory.

Chapman College currently is accepting applications for both the fall and spring semesters. Preliminary applications also may be made for all future semesters.

Fall semesters depart New York aboard the s.s. Ryndam for port stops in the Mediterranean and Latin America, ending in Los Angeles. Spring semesters circle the world from Los Angeles, stopping in Asia and Africa and ending at New York.

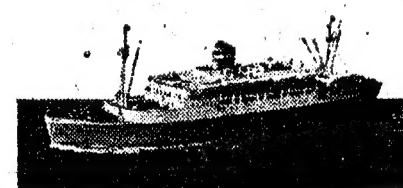

For a catalog and other information, complete and mail the coupon below.

You'll be able to talk to a World Campus Afloat representative and former students:
• Sunday, May 10, 2 p.m.
• Holiday Inn
• 1301 W. Russell, Sioux Falls, South Dakota

s.s. Ryndam is of Netherlands registry.
